Understanding Peace

Peace: The Greatest Power We Can Possess

“ We do not need guns and bombs
to bring peace;
we need love
and compassion.”

— Mother Teresa

“If I gave each one of you a matchstick, you could burn an entire forest. But if I gave you a seed, you could grow a forest. One destroys in minutes; the other creates for generations. That is the difference between conflict and peace.”

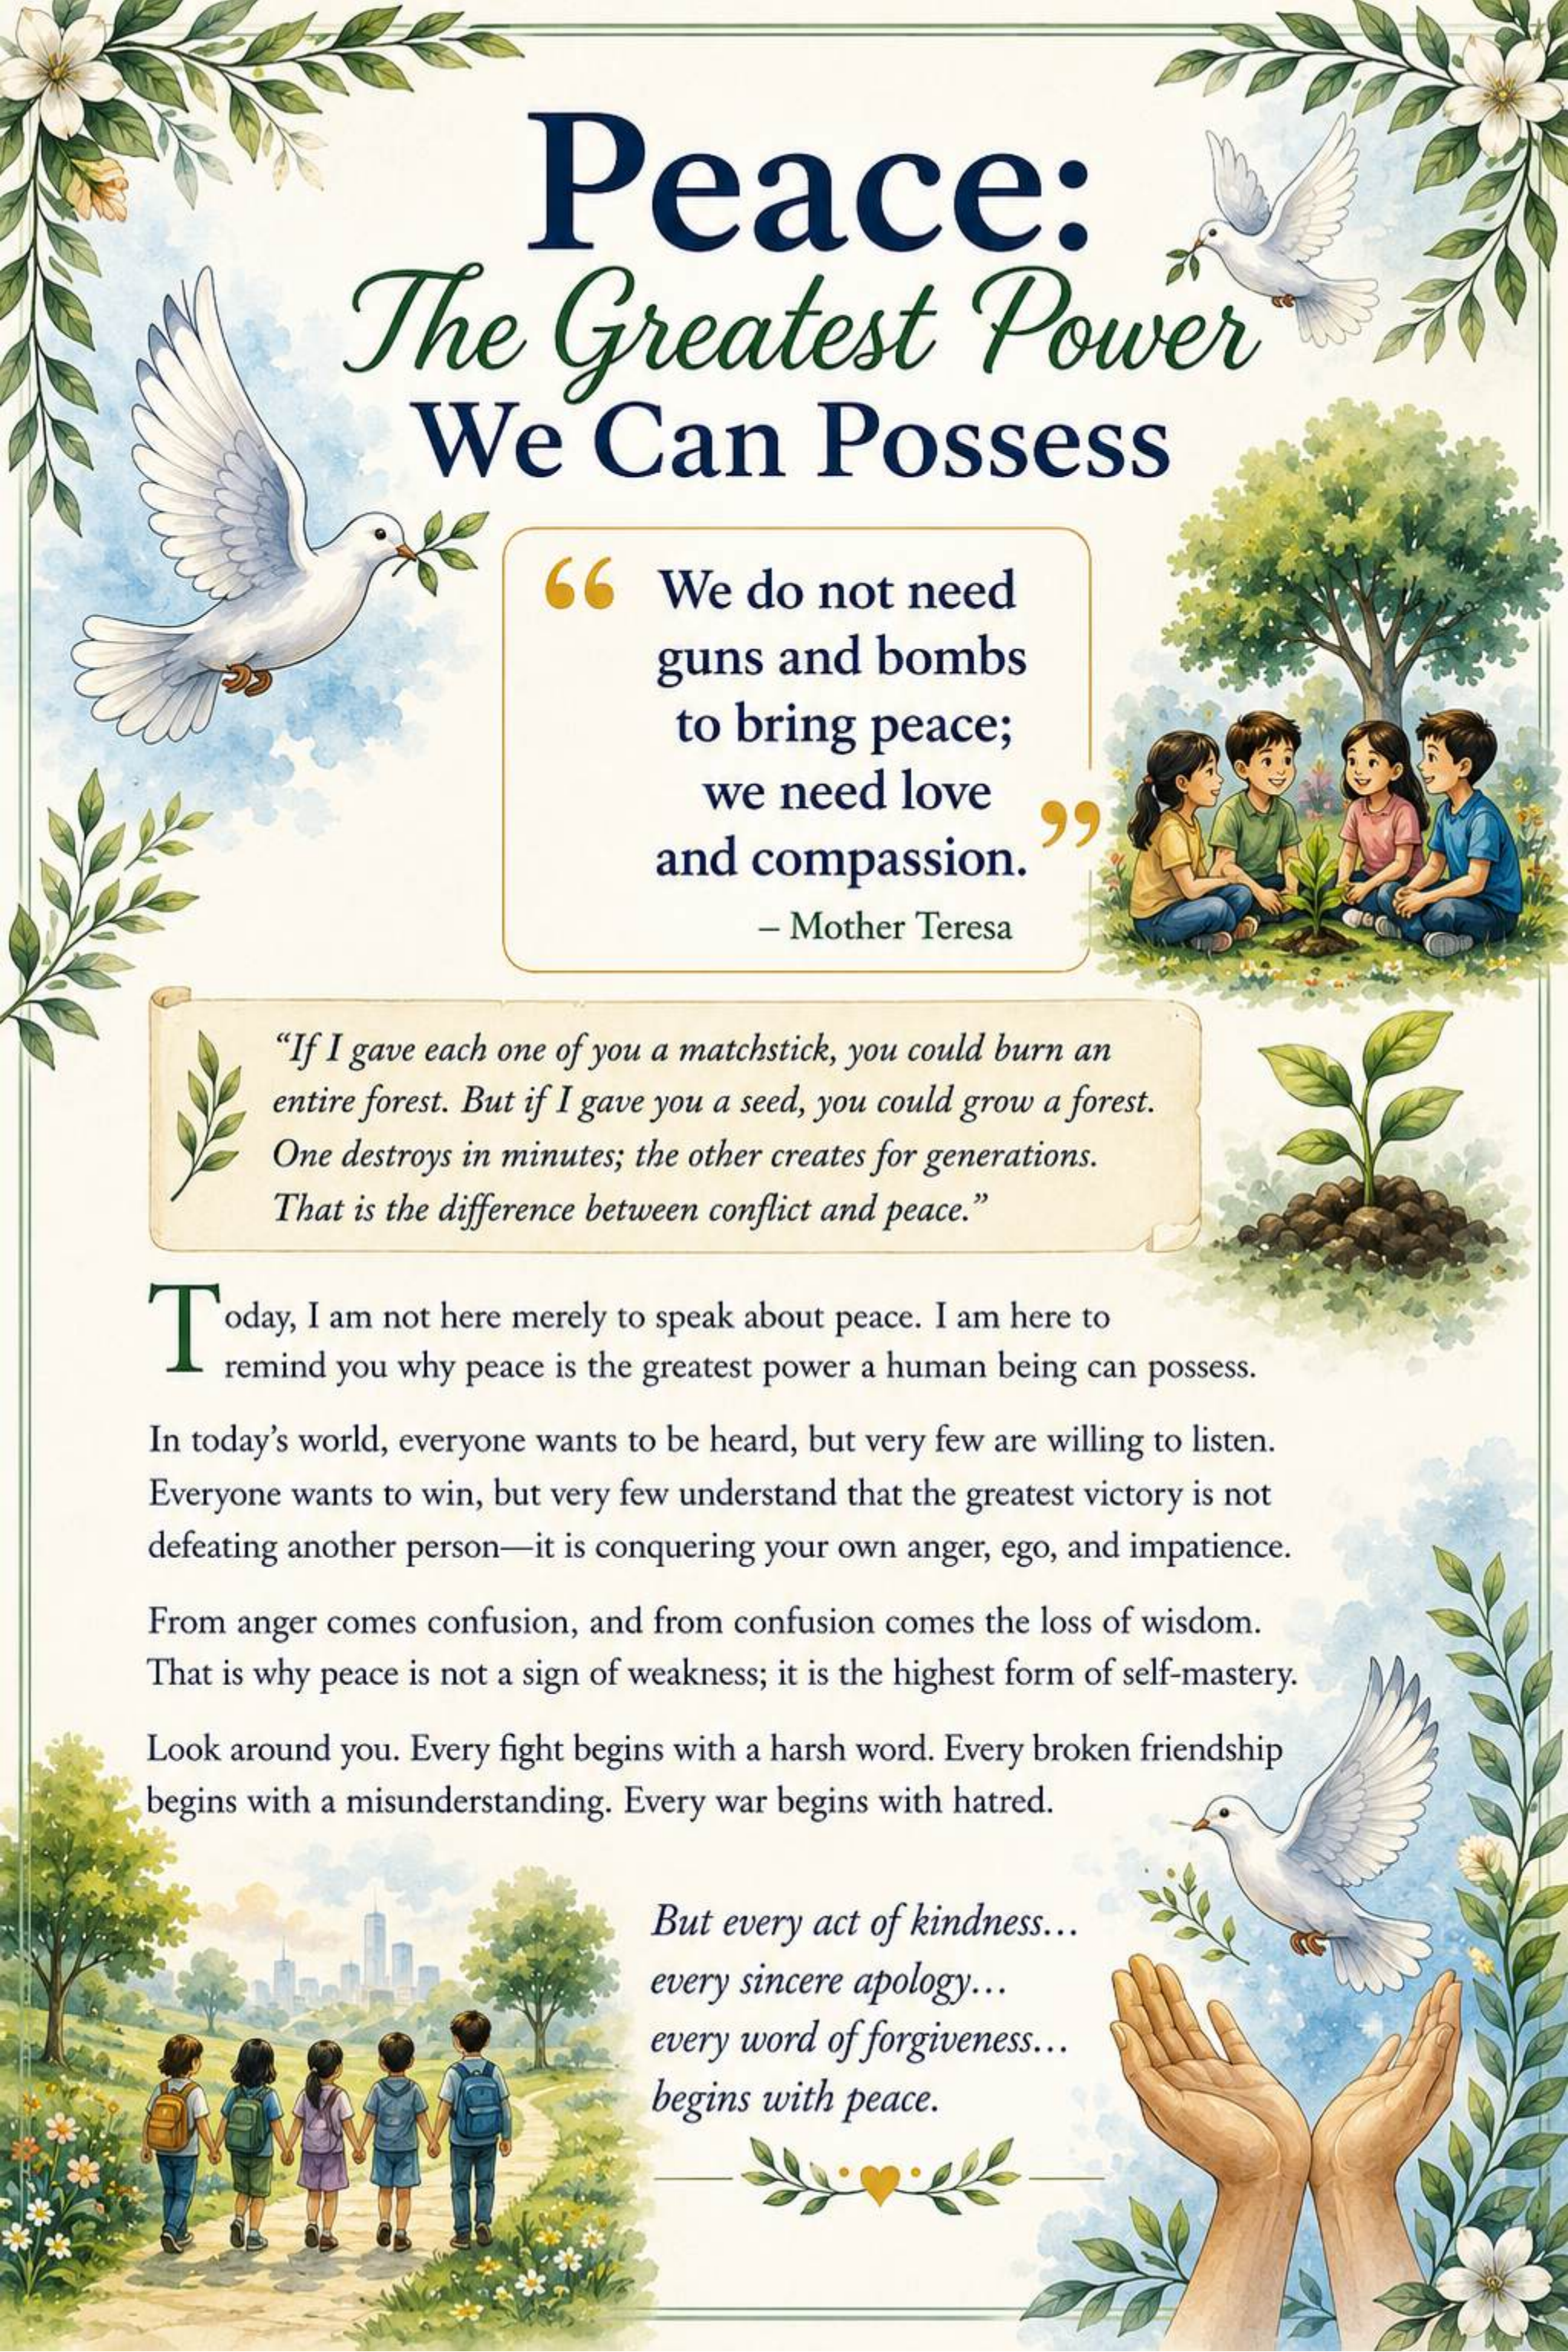

Today, I am not here merely to speak about peace. I am here to remind you why peace is the greatest power a human being can possess.

In today's world, everyone wants to be heard, but very few are willing to listen. Everyone wants to win, but very few understand that the greatest victory is not defeating another person—it is conquering your own anger, ego, and impatience.

From anger comes confusion, and from confusion comes the loss of wisdom. That is why peace is not a sign of weakness; it is the highest form of self-mastery.

Look around you. Every fight begins with a harsh word. Every broken friendship begins with a misunderstanding. Every war begins with hatred.

*But every act of kindness...
every sincere apology...
every word of forgiveness...

Our ancient sages prayed not only for peace among people but for peace throughout the entire universe.

Now imagine what our school would become if every student made these simple promises:

I will not insult—
I will inspire.

I will not react—
I will reflect.

I will not spread negativity—
I will spread hope.

That one decision could transform our classrooms, strengthen our friendships, bring happiness to our families, and eventually make our society a better place.

“The greatest victory is not defeating another person—it is conquering your own anger, ego, and impatience.”

Remember this:

The loudest person in the room is not always the strongest. Sometimes, the strongest person is the one who remains calm when everyone else loses control.

Before I conclude,
I would like to leave you with one final thought. Peace is not found in perfect places. Peace is created by people who choose kindness when they have every reason not to, forgiveness when revenge seems easier, and hope when the world expects despair.

So let us not ask,
“When will the world become peaceful?”

Instead, let us ask,
“When will I become the reason someone smiles today?”

Because when one heart finds peace, one family becomes happier.

When one family lives in peace, one community grows stronger.

When communities choose peace, nations prosper.

And when nations live in peace,
humanity wins.

— Mrs. Kanchan Mishra

Peace

Starts with You and Me

Mrs. Vertika Mishra

“A small smile can change a moment, a kind word can change a day, and a peaceful heart can change the world.”

Today, let me begin by asking you a simple question. What happens when two people want the same TV remote at home?

Usually, we hear: “Give it to me!” “No, I want it!” A small disagreement quickly turns into a big argument.

But what happens when one person smiles and says, “It’s okay, let’s share.”

Suddenly, the argument ends, smiles return, and peace wins.

This teaches us an important lesson: Peace is not about always getting what we want; it is about knowing how to respond with patience, kindness, and understanding.

Many people think peace simply means the absence of fighting. But true peace is much deeper. Peace means choosing kind words instead of hurtful ones, listening before reacting, respecting different opinions, and showing self-control even when we are upset.

The truth is, peace does not begin in the world—it begins within each one of us. It begins with our thoughts, our words, and our everyday actions.

Let us carry this beautiful message with us:

“If every child chooses kindness for just one minute, peace can stay in our school for the whole day—and if we choose kindness every day, we can make the world a better place.”

Give it to me!

No, I want it!

It’s okay, let’s share.

Just imagine if every student in our school decided to do these three simple things today:

Help one friend without being asked.

Say “Sorry” whenever they make a mistake.

Never forget to say “Please” and “Thank you.”

Wouldn’t our classrooms become happier?
Wouldn’t our school become a place where everyone feels respected, safe, and valued?

Before we conclude, let us all make a small but meaningful promise together:

“I will choose kindness over anger, respect over rudeness, understanding over arguments, and peace over conflict. I will be a peacemaker wherever I go.”

Always remember:

Peace is not something we wait for; it is something we create.”

– Mrs. Vertika Mishra

Peace Begins with Me

Mrs. Deepali Nigam

What if every person in this world decided to be kind for just one day? How different would our world be? Perhaps there would be fewer arguments, fewer tears, fewer broken hearts—and a lot more smiles.

Peace is a word that is small in letters but immense in meaning. Many of us believe that peace simply means the absence of war. But true peace is much deeper. Peace is choosing kindness when anger seems easier. It is listening before judging, forgiving before blaming, and understanding before reacting. Peace is not found in places—it is found in people.

As students, we often think that changing the world is the responsibility of leaders, governments, or famous personalities. But history teaches us something different. Every great change begins with one person taking one small step.

Every time we stop a friend from bullying someone, we create peace. Every time we apologise sincerely, we create peace. Every time we include a classmate sitting alone, we create peace. Every time we choose respect over ridicule, we create peace.

Imagine our school if each one of us decided to spread peace every single day. Our classrooms would become places of encouragement instead of competition, friendship instead of loneliness, and understanding instead of misunderstanding.

In today's world, we are connected by technology like never before, yet many people feel more disconnected than ever. We are quick to post opinions but slow to offer compassion. We celebrate success but often forget kindness. The world does not just need more intelligent people—it needs more peaceful hearts.

As Mahatma Gandhi wisely said, "Be the change that you wish to see in the world." These words remind us that peace does not begin in parliaments or on battlefields—it begins in our choices, our words, and our actions.

If each of us can answer "yes" to these questions every day, then we won't just dream of a peaceful world—we will build one.

Peace is contagious. One act of kindness inspires another, one smile creates another smile, and one peaceful heart can influence countless others.

*Let us not wait for peace to come to us.
Let us become the reason peace exists.*

At the end of each day, let us ask ourselves three simple questions:

1

Did I make someone smile today?

2

Did I choose kindness over anger?

3

Did I leave the world, even in a small way, more peaceful than I found it?

Peace

Begins with Each One of Us

Peace is often imagined as a calm lake, a clear blue sky, or a beautiful garden. However, true peace is much deeper than what we see around us.

A simple story beautifully explains this. Once, a king announced a painting competition on the theme "Peace." Many artists painted beautiful pictures of calm lakes, blue skies, and colorful gardens. But one painting was very different. It showed a fierce storm, dark clouds, and a waterfall crashing over rocks. At first, everyone wondered how it represented peace.

Then the king noticed a small bird sitting quietly in a nest behind the waterfall, protecting its babies. The bird remained calm and fearless despite the storm around it.

The king declared that painting the winner and said, "True peace is not the absence of problems. It is the ability to remain calm and do what is right even in difficult situations."

Life will not always be easy. There may be disagreements, challenges, or moments of disappointment. But if we stay calm, speak kindly, forgive others, and respect everyone, we become peacemakers.

The Bible also says in Matthew 5:9:

*"Blessed are the peacemakers,
for they will be called children of God."*
— Matthew 5:9

Every time we choose kindness instead of anger, forgiveness instead of revenge, and love instead of hatred, we reflect God's peace.

Let us remember that peace begins with each one of us.

A gentle word, a helping hand, or a forgiving heart can make our school a happier place.

Let us always choose kindness over anger, patience over impatience, and understanding over arguments.

Together, let us spread peace
wherever we go.

— Jovita John

Peace Begins with a Choice

Choose
Kindness
Choose
Peace

Let me begin with a question—
What if peace was not a big word, but a small choice we made every day?

Imagine you are sitting in your classroom and someone accidentally takes your seat.
You feel angry.
You have two choices:

“How dare you!”

OR

let’s sort it out.”

That tiny choice may seem insignificant, but that is where peace begins.

Peace is not only about countries signing treaties or people stopping wars. Peace is in our words, our reactions, our friendships, and even in the way we disagree.

A beautiful thought says:

“Peace begins with a smile.”

Let us make our school a place where kind words are stronger than harsh words, understanding is greater than ego, and kindness is never considered weakness.

So, students, before you reply in anger, pause.

Before you judge someone,
understand.

Before you spread a rumour,
think.

And before you hurt someone with words, remember—you may forget what you said,
but they may remember
how you made them feel.

Because sometimes, the bravest person in the room is not the one who fights back, but the one who chooses peace.

Let us all be peacemakers,
not peace breakers.

—Mrs. Prachi Sharma

Peace

Begins with Us

Choose
Kindness
Choose
Peace

We often think of peace as a distant, grand concept—like the absence of war between countries. But in reality, true peace begins right here, in our classrooms, our playgrounds, and our homes.

It is not about simply avoiding arguments. It is about how we treat one another. The great leader Mahatma Gandhi once said, “Peace cannot be kept by force; it can only be achieved by understanding.”

*Listen more.
Understand better.
Live in peace.*

In our daily school life, it is completely normal to have disagreements. We might not always agree with our friends on the playground or with our classmates in a group project.

But peace is about how we handle these conflicts respectfully. It is choosing dialogue over shouting and empathy over anger. When we choose to listen to someone else's perspective rather than just trying to prove we are right, we are actively building peace.

*Peace
starts with me and you.*

— Rajeev Mishra

The Gift of Peace

As we celebrate the Feast Month of our patroness, St. Ann, let us reflect on one of the greatest gifts we can offer the world—peace.

Peace is often misunderstood as simply being quiet or avoiding arguments. In reality, peace is much deeper. It is the ability to remain calm in moments of pressure, to act with wisdom instead of impulse, and to treat every person with respect and compassion.

True peace begins within us. When our minds are filled with gratitude, honesty, patience, and self-discipline, our words become gentle and our actions become thoughtful.

Every day, we have opportunities to build peace.

We build it when we listen without interrupting.

When we respect opinions that differ from our own.

When we include someone who feels left out.

When we speak the truth with kindness.

When we choose cooperation over competition.

As students, your education is not only about gaining knowledge but also about developing values. Intelligence may help you succeed, but character will determine how you use that success. A peaceful heart creates healthy relationships, a positive learning environment, and a community where everyone feels safe, respected, and valued.

The greatest achievements in life are not measured only by marks, medals, or positions. They are measured by the goodness we spread, the respect we show, and the positive difference we make in the lives of others.

Let us remember that peace is not something we find outside ourselves—it is something we cultivate within ourselves. When our hearts are peaceful, our words become encouraging, our actions become meaningful, and our presence becomes a source of hope for others.

— Mrs. Meena Bisht —

Peace: A Way of Life

Peace is not just the absence of fights or disagreements; it is a way of living with kindness, patience, and respect for others. It begins with small actions such as speaking politely, listening with an open mind, helping those in need, and forgiving mistakes. When we choose understanding over anger and cooperation over conflict, we create a positive environment where everyone feels safe, valued, and happy.

Peace also begins within us. When our minds are calm, we are better able to make wise decisions and spread positivity to those around us.

As students, we can promote peace by being honest, forgiving others, sharing with our classmates, and resolving problems without fighting. Every small act of kindness makes our school a happier and safer place.

Be honest

Forgive others

Share with our classmates

Resolve problems
without fighting

As Mahatma Gandhi wisely said,

*“There is no path
to peace.
Peace is the path.”*

These words remind us that peace is not something we wait for—it is something we practice every day through our thoughts, words, and actions.

Let us all make a conscious effort to be kind, respectful, and compassionate so that we can contribute to a more peaceful school, community, and world.

IN

SCHOOL AND SOCIETY

Peace:

The Path to a Better Tomorrow

Choose Peace
Choose Hope

Peace means living and working together in harmony, respecting each other's differences, and helping one another. It is not just the absence of war. True peace begins in our minds, extends to our families and society, and ultimately embraces the entire world. It means living with love, respect, and understanding.

Without peace, there can be no development.

Students
cannot study

Farmers
cannot farm

Doctors cannot care for people

if there is constant conflict.

Peace gives us strength, hope, and happiness. In a peaceful school, children learn better; in a peaceful country, people live with dignity.

Peace begins with me,
Peace begins with you,
Peace begins with all of us.

If we want peace, we must be the change.

We can build peace by:

Avoiding bullying

Sharing with others

Including everyone in games and group activities

As noted by many peace advocates,
*“Peace cannot be kept by force;
it can only be achieved by understanding.”*

The world today faces many challenges because of the lack of peace.

If every person chooses to be kind and helpful, the world will become a better place.

Peace is not a destination—
it is a way of life.
As John F. Kennedy said,
*“Peace is a daily,
a weekly and a monthly process.”*

If every child learns the value of peace in school, tomorrow's world will be a more peaceful one.

Let us all become messengers of peace.

— Mrs. Leena Anthony —

Peace Begins Within

*"Peace cannot be kept by force;
it can only be achieved by understanding."*

— Albert Einstein

Peace is fundamental to human happiness and progress.

We often think of peace as simply the absence of war or conflict. But true peace is much more than that. It begins within ourselves—in how we think, how we speak, and how we treat those around us.

In our daily school life, practicing peace is quite simple.

It means choosing kindness over anger.

Listening to others with respect.

Resolving arguments through friendly dialogue.

Helping a classmate in need.

When we show empathy and acceptance towards differences, we create a safe, harmonious environment where everyone can learn and grow together.

As Mahatma Gandhi famously said,

"Be the change that you wish to see in the world."

If we want a peaceful world, we must first cultivate peace in our own minds and hearts.

Peace is not a passive wish; it is an active choice we make every single day.

Let us pledge to be ambassadors of peace—starting from our classrooms, spreading to our homes, and eventually shaping the world.

— Mrs. Nidhi Jabral —

Small Acts, Lasting Peace

Peace is one of the greatest gifts we can have. It means living in harmony, showing kindness, respecting others, and solving problems without anger or violence. Peace begins with each one of us through our words, thoughts, and actions.

*“Peace
begins with a smile,
grows with kindness,
and lasts a lifetime.”*

As students, you can promote peace by being honest, helping your classmates, respecting your teachers and parents, and treating everyone equally. A peaceful classroom creates a better environment for learning and friendship.

Let us remember that small acts of kindness can make a big difference. If we choose love over hate, forgiveness over anger, and understanding over judgment, we can build a peaceful school, a peaceful society, and a peaceful world.

– Mrs. Aprajita Singh

*Be kind. Be peaceful.
Be the light of kindness.*

Peace Starts with You and Me

“Blessed are the peacemakers,
for they will be called children of God.”

— Matthew 5:9

Peace is not only the absence of fighting. It means staying calm, being kind, and treating everyone with respect. Peace begins with each one of us. A smile, kind words, and helping someone in need are small actions that can make a big difference.

Sometimes we feel angry or upset, but instead of reacting in anger, we should take a moment to think and speak politely. This helps us solve problems in a better way.

In school, we can spread peace by sharing with our friends, listening to others, following rules, and respecting our teachers and classmates. When there is peace around us, we feel happy, safe, and ready to learn.

Let us all promise to be kind, patient, and respectful every day. Remember, peace starts with you and me.

PEACE IN THE WORLD

The world will be saved by beauty,

India's Legacy of Peace

ASHOKA

Emperor Ashoka, after the Kalinga War, spread the message of peace, compassion, and respect for all. His ideals continue to inspire the world.

India is a peace-loving nation. From ancient times, our great leaders have taught us the importance of harmony, kindness, and non-violence. Emperor Ashoka, after the Kalinga War, spread the message of peace, compassion, and respect for all. His ideals continue to inspire the world.

KALINGA

The Kalinga War changed Emperor Ashoka's heart and showed him the path of Dharma and Peace.

After Independence, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru strengthened India's commitment to peace through the Panchsheel Principles, which promote mutual respect, peaceful coexistence, and cooperation among nations. India's foreign policy has always encouraged dialogue instead of conflict and friendship instead of hatred.

— Mrs. Bandana Singh

“The world will be a better place when we choose peace over conflict.”

May the legacy of peace
continue to be India's gift to the world.

Be a Peacemaker

“Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God.”

Peace is not just the absence of fights or war, but true peace begins in our minds and hearts. When we are calm, kind, and respectful, we create a peaceful environment around us. We think better, learn better, and live happier lives.

In today's fast-moving world, we often become angry, impatient, or stressed. But peace teaches us to be patient, forgive others, and solve problems through understanding instead of conflict.

A smile, a kind word, and a helping hand can bring peace to someone's life. Let us remember the beautiful words:

“Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God.”

God blesses the peacemakers. True peace is a gift of God, but it is also our daily responsibility. It means loving one another, respecting each other, and caring for everyone around us.

If each one of us becomes a peacemaker in our school, our nation will become a happier and more peaceful place.

अंत में मैं यही कहना चाहूंगी कि आज हम सभी यह संकल्प लें कि हम अपने क्रोध, अहंकार और ईर्ष्या को पीछे छोड़कर अपने स्कूल और समाज में शांति, प्रेम तथा भाईचारे को बढ़ावा देंगे।

♥ So, let each one of us become a peacemaker. ♥

— Mrs. Shipra Kumar

Be Kind

Show Respect

Forgive Others

Help One Another

Spread Peace

Small actions, Big change.
Together, let's build a peaceful world.

Peace:

The Foundation of a Harmonious Life

True peace is not the absence of external conflict but an unshakable inner stillness. Peace comes when we perform our duties diligently while relinquishing the desire for the results. When our minds are no longer swayed by dualities such as joy and sorrow, praise and blame, they settle into a state of deep and steady peace.

All-round personality development is possible only in a peaceful environment. But where does such an environment come from? It does not simply appear on its own—it must be created. Peace fosters positivity, and in a peaceful atmosphere, a person's creativity and character flourish.

True peace is achieved by surrendering the illusion of control, dedicating our actions to a higher purpose, and realizing that God is the supreme proprietor and the dearest friend of us all.

— Mrs. Rupam Dhir

“Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God.”
— Matthew 5:9

हे, प्रभु! देना ऐसा वरदान,
शांति का दीप जलाएँ हम,
प्यार का संदेश फैलाएँ हम,
हर मन में भर दें प्रेम महान,
ना है लड़ाई, नया कोई बैर,
ना हो क्रोध, ना कोई द्वेष,

मिलकर रहें, यही है सैर,
शांति से महके यह सारा देश,
शांति से महके यह सारा देश।

A MESSAGE TO CARRY FORWARD

A Smile for Peace

— Mrs. Aruna Abraham

Peace means living with love, kindness, respect, and understanding. It is not only the absence of fighting or violence but also the feeling of calmness and happiness in our hearts.

As students, we should solve problems with patience and understanding instead of anger. A warm smile, speaking politely, helping others, and respecting everyone are simple ways to spread peace.

Let us promise to be kind, honest, respectful, and caring. Together, we can create a peaceful school and a peaceful future.

“Peace begins with a smile.”

— Mother Teresa

Choosing Peace Every Day

— Ms. Preeti Moore —

Let me begin with a simple story.
Once, two students were fighting over a pencil. Both were angry. Then a third student came, gave each of them a new pencil, and said, "Let's draw together." The fight ended. That is peace.

Peace means choosing kindness instead of anger. It means talking instead of shouting and solving problems without hurting others.

Today, we often hear about wars and conflicts around the world. In every war, innocent people suffer the most. Homes are destroyed, families are separated, and children lose their smiles. This reminds us that violence may win battles, but only peace wins hearts.

Peace is not only needed between countries. It begins in our homes, our classrooms, and our hearts.

In our school, peace means respecting teachers, helping our friends, sharing with others, and keeping our surroundings clean.

How can we create peace?
The answer is simple. Speak politely, forgive others, help those in need, and spread kindness wherever you go. Every small good action makes a big difference.

Remember, you cannot bring peace to the world if your own heart is filled with anger. Peace begins within us.

So, let us start today—with one smile, one kind word, one "sorry," and one helping hand.

Because peace begins with me.
Peace begins with you.
Peace begins with all of us.

— Ms. Preeti Moore —

1. The Fight

2. The Peacemaker

3. Peace

Peace begins with me.

Peace begins with you.

Peace begins with all of us.

A PROMISE FOR PEACE

I will choose kindness over anger.

I will choose understanding over judgment.

I will choose forgiveness over revenge.

I will choose dialogue over conflict.

I will be a peacemaker wherever I go.
